SAN Volume Controller Packaged Demonstration

DESCRIPTION

A partner services representative will demonstrate a typical SAN Volume Controller configuration around a heterogeneous environment of Windows, Linux and UNIX servers.

DELIVERABLES

Demonstration of the following:

- Accessing the Graphical User Interface
- Creation of Mdisks using SAN attached LUNs
- Grouping of Mdisks into groups to create a tiered storage architecture
- Creation of Vdisks from the Mdisk groups
- Mapping Vdisks to SAN attached host systems
- Online expansion of a Vdisk
- Migration of a Vdisk between Mdisk groups to show “on-the fly” movement between tiers of disk
- Creation of an image-mode Vdisk showing data preservation when implementing SVC
- Implementation of Flashcopy at an SVC level to create a copy of a Vdisk for backup purposes

CUSTOMER BENEFITS

The customer will benefit from the technical experience and expertise in a guided demonstration.

The customer will have confidence they can proceed with the product evaluation with the knowledge gained from the demonstration.

The customer will benefit from a full interactive session with the ability to ‘have a go themselves’ if desired.

The customer will save time and future discrepancies that may otherwise occur from an unguided, literature based product brief

ENVIRONMENT

The SAN Volume Controller will be deployed in a SAN environment managing LUNS from an IBM DS4300 storage server, an IBM DS4700 storage server and an IBM DS6800 storage server. The Vdisks will be presented to a logical partition on an IBM System p550.
